

2021 Pathway Bikeway Map Update

The City of Calgary Pathway and Bikeway map helps many Calgarians explore the City by foot, by bike, by skate, and by scooter. The map has not been updated in almost 15 years; however, our brand standards have changed in that time, and more importantly, our understanding of where people feel comfortable walking, biking, and wheeling has changed. More and more people are trying cycling and wheeling for the first time and/or are travelling with their families. We want to make it easy to plan a route and explore the City based on the infrastructure that people can feel comfortable travelling on.

What has changed?

- Simplified: The new map is simplified – we have removed outdated information.
- Route comfort: Routes are now categorized by “level of comfort” – ranging from fully separated and dedicated infrastructure to bikeways shared with vehicles on-street. This differentiation helps tell you what to expect before you head out and lets you plan your route based on your level of comfort.
- Destinations: The map now identifies many places that people want to go, including schools, transit stations, outdoor skating rinks, playgrounds, and tobogganing hills. This makes it easier for people to get to more of the places they want to go by foot and by bike.

What has not changed?

- Safety & education information
- Maps are available in print form as well as online at Calgary.ca
- Print maps can be found at most local bike shops and City recreation facilities, as well as other community hubs.
- Please see Calgary.ca or call 311 for more details.

Who is the map for?

- The map is for any Calgarian or visitors wanting to get out and explore the city.
- Our target audience is people who have shown an interest in getting to more places by foot or by bike but haven't had the opportunity to do so yet, as well as established wheelers in Calgary.
- By developing a tool that works for those new to walking and biking, it will also serve everyone better, regardless of your experience on Calgary's pathways and bikeways.
